Forecast For East of England
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 0400 on Wednesday 14 Apr 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 0600 and 1800

Headline:
Mostly settled with cold frosty nights.

Today:
Any early mist or fog patches clearing quickly. Sunny spells this morning before patchy cloud developing through the afternoon. Most parts staying dry, although the odd light shower is possible away from coasts. Feeling mild in direct sunshine, otherwise cool. Maximum temperature 12 deg C (54 deg F).

Tonight:
Cloud will break this evening, leaving long clear and cold spells overnight. A widespread frost developing, but with a risk of scattered showers moving into eastern coastal districts by dawn. Minimum temperature -3 deg C (27 deg F).

Thursday:
After a cold and frosty start it should become bright with a chance of showers. Another cold and frosty night with a risk of mist and patchy fog. Maximum temperature 10 deg C (50 deg F).

Outlook for Friday to Sunday:
After cold and misty or foggy starts, it should become bright and sunny each day with temperatures trending toward normal. Largely dry with light winds, feeling pleasant in sunshine.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.